

I'm a Midwesterner, originally from Iowa, but have lived all over the world and I've finally made it back to the Midwest to call Saint Paul home. The songs I write reflect the sound of a lived life told in snippets. Songs that flash glimpses into distant places that feel so close to home. These places, the feelings they generate, and the soul that accepts them. With itchy fingers and stretched voices, these songs open the road. Where will it take you?