

Ole and the Evinrudes are a jazz trio you'd enjoy at an old school Northwoods supper club. Picture them on a bandstand flanked by burgundy Naugahyde booths. With sax, piano, and bass, their sound pairs perfectly with a relish tray, a good steak, and a stiff Old Fashioned. They are skilled players with decades of experience in many musical styles, and old friends whose camaraderie shines through in their music. Their snazzy, jazzy versions of holiday favorites and jazz standards will put you in a festive yet chill mood.
